

Eyes of Eve

Lyrics by: David Drake

A thin horizon pulls across the sky
A flashing light
A memory
A candle dies
And the wind blows through the fields
Against her skin it feels real
Like the touch of love they came to steal

Put your heart on the line
Take it every single time
You can break it off and give your love away
Put your heart on the line
Take it every single time
You can break it off and give your love away

Tell the monster where you like to sleep
In the night he roams alone
To your room it creeps
And the wind blows west to east
Making noise in her lovers keep
And she knows how to hide from the eyes of Eve

Put your heart on the line
Take it every single time
You can break it off and give your love away
Put your heart on the line
Take it every single time
You can break it off and give your love away

Give your love Give your love away
Give your love Give your love away
Give your love away
Give your love away

Put your heart on the line
Take it every single time
You can break it off and give your love away